A gold-silver-bronze command structure is a command hierarchy used for major operations by the emergency services of the United Kingdom. Some practitioners use the term strategic-tactical-operational command structure instead, but the different categories are equivalent. In some cases, the national government will assume ultimate control and act as a "platinum" level. The three roles are not

~~Gold silver bronze command structure~~ — Wikipedia

The generic command structure, nationally recognised, accepted and used by the police, other emergency services and partner agencies, is based on the gold, silver, bronze ( GSB) hierarchy of command and can be applied to the resolution of both spontaneous incidents and planned operations. The terms gold, silver and bronze are used in the police service.

However, there is one simple item that may be more iconic of the Olympic Games than anything else - the gold, silver and bronze medals. Winning Olympic gold has become the ultimate mark of expertise in your sport, and the legendary nature of becoming an Olympic champion has made these medals an inseparable part of the competition. Gold, silver and bronze medals are seen in many different sports and competitions in modern times, but where did the tradition begin?

Commander is in overall control of their organisation's resources at the incident. They are not on site, but located at a distant control room, the Gold Command, where they formulate the strategy for dealing with the incident. If the Gold Commanders for the organisations involved are not co-located, they will be in constant communication with each other.

cultural cosmology depicted a decline from a golden age to a silver age followed by an Iron Age. In some variants there is a Bronze Age, an interim between the Iron Age and Silver Age. In Japan, the traditional Sho Chiku Bai (???) ranking system has a hierarchy of pine ? (matsu), bamboo ? (take), and plum ? (ume). This is commonly used by restaurants to indicate how elaborate (and expensive) set meals are.
